

BELONGING TO A FAMILY IS A KEY!

Gangster's life was dangerous, no doubt about that; still, it was anything but boring. In this party, the guests are going to enjoy a gangster-themed program and entertainment.

DETAILED DESCRIPTION:

INVITATION

A few weeks in advance all guests, i.e. members of a mafia family, receive a secret phone call from the boss of the family (the Company's CEO); his voice is hoarse and his ways bossy. He invites everyone to a family meeting and stresses that the details will be sent via a secret email, which must be deleted straight after reading it. The email contains a password necessary for entering the place of the meeting and the dress code – clothes from the Prohibition Era, something similar to Al Capone's style.

WELCOMING OF THE GUESTS

At the entrance to the venue gangsters (event assistants) with cigars in their mouths search everyone and ask for a password ("Belonging to a family is a key!".) If the answer is correct, beautiful young ladies (event assistants) give the guest an envelope containing some local "money" that will prove useful later in the evening.

A drug dealer is offering the guests his product (powdered sugar in tiny bags), and the waiters are serving some contraband alcohol. As for the music, it's pieces/soundtracks from the well-known movies about gangsters and mafia. The guests are served Italian dishes.

OPENING OF THE EVENT

The lights get dimmer, the music gets louder and then on the screen above the stage everyone sees the legendary Al Capone (an actor is dubbing him). He says that he is ready to have some new members in his family but they must be courageous, inventive, reliable and, most importantly, understand the value of the family. First of all, they have to prove they're good enough to be included. Then Al Capone adds that he has sent his agent to the meeting, and from that moment the Host of the Event takes over. He is dressed and made up to look like a gangster. The music is kind of dramatic and tense, there are sounds of gunshots in the distance (petards) and the stage fills with smoke (a smoke machine). Then cabaret dancers appear on the stage to dance the first dance of the evening.

Are you loyal enough?

Al Capone's agent (aka the Host of the Event) comes back with the boss of the family (aka the Company's CEO) who welcomes the guests. The agent then announces that Al Capone wants to find out how loyal some members of the family are; several employees who have had a very successful year and very good results in the company are taken away in handcuffs. While other guests are listening to a cabaret singer and watching cabaret dancers, a professional make-up artist is working with the ones who are 'being interrogated'. Once she finishes, they are taken back. Other guests are in for surprise: their colleagues look beaten, with black eyes, bruises and cuts. But they haven't given away any secrets! Al Capone is satisfied and the bruised heroes get presents. Now the gangster party really kicks off!

Gangster Party Entertainment

Casino: Roulette, Dice roll, Black Jack, Poker

Any gangster enjoys a good game of roulette and poker! The guests can now use the money they received in the beginning of the evening: banknotes picturing the logo of the company and the portraits of the CEO and other managers. In a specially allocated spot in the venue gambling is in full swing, and the ones who lose are going to be very sorry...

Bartenders' Show

It's Prohibition Era but the gangsters are not going to be bothered by that. The bartenders show their tricks: they juggle bottles, make a cocktail for 100 persons at the same time, etc.

Guess the Melody

DJ picks some Italian pieces (by Eros Ramazzotti, Giacomo Puccini, Luciano Pavarotti, Andrea Bocelli, etc.) for the guests to guess the composer/the title/the performer. The authors of correct guesses are given mini prizes right away.

Whiskey Degustation

Experts are happy to share their knowledge about the nuances of taste and smell of good whiskey as the guests savor different kinds of this drink. Later the guests are blindfolded and have to guess, which kinds of whiskey they are given to taste. The winner is awarded a prize – a bottle of good whiskey.

A Concert

Sooner or later the gangsters are going to feel like dancing. It's time for a concert where a well-known band is going to sing whatever the gangsters want to hear: slow pieces, energetic pieces, etc. The gangsters ask their ladies for a dance.

A Police Raid

The gangsters are in for a big surprise – an unexpected police raid! At midnight, police officers (actors in police uniforms) all of a sudden invade the venue. They claim that the people gathered here are the members of the most influential mafia family, and not the employees of the company that is holding the party. The Host is trying to find a way out, and the police officers agree to ask the guests ten questions about the company. After receiving ten correct answers, they apologize and leave the venue. Phew, no skirmish today...

Bartenders' Fire Show

The atmosphere is getting hotter and hotter. The gangsters need something breathtaking to relieve the stress after the police raid, and the bartenders' fire show is the answer. They juggle burning bottles, breathe fire and make burning cocktails for everyone to try.

A Mean Trick

To much fanfare, a huge cake is brought in but one of the waiters trips and the cake falls to the ground. The dessert is ruined. The Host of the Event has a mean smile on his face; he explains that this has only been Al Capone's mean trick and the real cake is brought in. It's decorated with cake fountain sparklers and has the motto of the evening written on it – "Belonging to a family is a key!". A huge bottle of champagne is popped to celebrate the success of the evening and the future successes to come.

Afterwards, the guests go outside to enjoy a firework show.

A Disco of Good Old Songs

Finally, it's time for a disco of the all-time greatest hits.

We wish you a stunning party!